"Wellness at Marvell is more than just eating right and exercising. Marvell's Wellness Program takes into account the various physical and mental aspects that contribute to employees' overall wellbeing," said Reid Linney, vice president of Human Resources at Marvell Semiconductor, Inc. "We view wellness as the Company's ability to assist employees with resources for personal and family care, financial fitness and maintaining a work-life balance. By providing for employees in this way, we hope to promote a culture of wellness extending from the workplace to the home."

According to the Silicon Valley/San Jose Business Journal, companies ranked in this publication know that healthy employees are happy and productive employees. They understand that creating a culture where good health practices are encouraged and incentivized is an investment that pays off both in attraction and retention of a quality workforce. With this ranking of the healthiest employers in the Greater Bay Area, the Silicon Valley/San Jose Business Journal takes a snapshot of companies that invest time resources, training and dollars in creative policies and programs that promote wellness and healthy lifestyles.

Nearly 100 companies, representing 146,000 employees, nominated themselves for this award. Winners were selected by the Healthiest Employers LLC based on their scores from a comprehensive online survey.

Marvell accepted the award on Sept. 30, 2011, at a ceremony at the Hotel Sofitel in Redwood City, Calif.
